Tracy Collins [00:00:42]:

Hi, and welcome to episode 87 of the UK travel planning podcast. This week, I am joined by special guest, Charlotte Golledge, one of the fabulous driver tour guides with Edinburgh Black Cab Tours. Charlotte is also a published historian with a specialism in graveyards, cemeteries, and burial sites in Scotland. Anne has appeared in an episode of Men in Kilts entitled Spooks and Scares with Sam Heughan and Graeme McTavish. I started by asking Charlotte to introduce herself and share a little about her background.

Charlotte Golledge [00:01:13]:

So my name is Charlotte Golledge. I work with Edinburgh Black Cab Tours. I've been working in the tourist industry for about 20 years now, which is kind of strange for me because in my head, I'm still 25. I'm not in my forties. So that's kind of admitting a bit of an age thing going on there. My background, first of all, started off in a tourist information centre on the Royal Mile. It then moved into ghost tours in St Andrews where I went to school. And then, obviously, also City of the Dead, which is based in Edinburgh.

Charlotte Golledge [00:01:45]:

I was with them until about 2019 when I finally jumped ship and went to work for Historic Scotland because castles are a big thing for me, and Inchcolm Island out in the middle of 4th is somewhere that I've always wanted to work. So the job came up, and I decided to change direction from the ghost tours, basically. Going out on the waters, being out in the fresh air, being surrounded by so much history and nature, and it was fantastic. Then COVID happened, and The Scottish tourism industry just completely there was nothing. There was absolutely nothing there at all. There was nothing I could Work as my only other thing I can do is I'm a qualified painter decorator, but you weren't allowed in people's houses, so I went and got a job in care. And I completely take my hat off to anybody who works in care. It's a very hard job.

Charlotte Golledge [00:02:41]:

It's very underpaid, And there's very little gratitude to what you do. So, back in the tourist world again, I went to Blacknest Castle, Which some people do know from Outlander as being Fort William. And while I was working at Blacknest Castle, So, the lads made in for black cab tours would often turn up, and I'd sort of have a chat with them. I kinda chatted to Steven Maloney more than the other 2. And after a little while, you know, Steve Steven knew that I was doing my own tours. I'd sort of set up doing my own tours. Basically, a lot of genealogy stuff, And I'd started doing my own thing, and, I was finding it really hard to break into the market. You know, I knew I was good at what I did, but it was Quite hard to break in.

Charlotte Golledge [00:03:27]:

So I think the lads had a bit of a chat together and asked me if I want to go on board. At first, I was a little bit unsure, and I think they were a little bit unsure as well. But, yeah, now we're just 1 big dysfunctional family.

Tracy Collins [00:03:43]:

That's so funny, darling. So I know there's you, and there's the 3 lads who you've mentioned.

Charlotte Golledge [00:03:47]:

Mhmm.

Tracy Collins [00:03:48]:

So so tell us a little bit about Edinburgh Black Cab Tours, about the lads and and what makes them so special.

Charlotte Golledge [00:03:55]:

Well, I can only say the nice things about them. Yes. No. So, basically, I believe it was around about 2018 that Steve so that's Steve Greenhorn. He got Chatting with a few other like minded people, and they went and did, like, their tour guide tests or qualifications, which I think a lot of taxi drivers were kind of doing at the time. So after doing that, Steve basically decided to turn his 23 years as a taxi driver into this whole new thing of, like, doing tours, Being able to, you know, just promote Scotland and promote the wide history that that we have. And, of course, for the guys as well, Kevin came on board. Steven came on board, and obviously COVID happened.

Charlotte Golledge [00:04:44]:

So all these great ideas that everybody was having, you know, everybody was put on hold with it. So we came out of we came out of COVID, and then, basically, As I said, I was at Black Nest Castle, and it was a very strange time because I'd see the tour guides all turning up. And, you know, we still had the things in place where You couldn't be more than a meter away from someone else, and it was it was a difficult time, but everybody started trying to get back into it as much possible. And it was great because a lot of the the companies and the sites would all work together, you know, just to try and get things up and going again.

Tracy Collins [00:05:20]:

Yeah.

Charlotte Golledge [00:05:20]:

And to be honest, now it's like COVID never happened, you know. And in fact, I would say this year is probably gonna be one of our busiest years to date. I think last year, we still had people who were a little bit nervous, and then that whole fear of missing out thing kicked in.

Tracy Collins [00:05:36]:

Yes. Yes.

Charlotte Golledge [00:05:36]:

And and so now, you know, we have lots of inquiries. I think it's gonna be it's gonna be busy. It's gonna be really busy. So I think pretty much from April to October, we are canceling Sleeping. We're canceling our lives. We're just gonna be continuously touring.

Tracy Collins [00:05:54]:

So does the 4 of you that do tours, so Do you all specialize in different tours, or can you all deliver all the tours? Or do you some of you do day tours and some of you do the longer? Because I know you've got multi day tours. How does it work?

Charlotte Golledge [00:06:08]:

So pretty much, we've all kind of got our favorites, and we've all got our areas of expertise. Steve is very much Harrison Lewis, Sky, those sort of tours. Stephen loves the the borders, and you're going over into Bambara, Things like that. Kevin is a really good all around one. He's like, Kevin's Kevin. Kevin's lovely, and he pretty much can turn himself to to anything. And he uses humor a lot as well. So he's he's a popular one with everybody.

Tracy Collins [00:06:39]:

What about you, Charlotte? Do you have a particular favorite or a particular area that you like to To tour

Charlotte Golledge [00:06:45]:

on. I do love doing the outlander ones because I can talk outlander inside out, back to front. I grew up in Fife. So the guys, they're all from Edinburgh, and I'm over the water in Fife. So I do enjoy doing Fife once, but I think for me, The ultimate favorite for me is doing Perthshire, like going to the Hermitage, things that I love all the nature ones, you know. I do love my castle, but I do love being out in nature as well. So, you know, but we we can all turn our hands to pretty much anything. I think the most unusual one I had was when Steve contacted me to say that I had a tour in Edinburgh the next day, and I needed to become an expert on tenement buildings, Which I still haven't forgiven him for, but that that was been a quite a lot of reading up overnight.

Tracy Collins [00:07:31]:

Charlotte Golledge [00:07:34]:

There was quite a lot of reading up. I now know the difference between the bay windows being for the up for the higher classes who were living in tenement buildings and the ones with the flat windows who with the lower classes and yeah. But I'm not I managed to to pass that tour. I don't think I'll ever need that knowledge again. But

Tracy Collins [00:07:50]:

You never know. You've got it. You can put it in a book at some point, Charlotte.

Charlotte Golledge [00:07:54]:

I don't think anybody would want to read that book.

Tracy Collins [00:07:58]:

Well, I don't know. I have to say, I always find the The history of the Royal Mile, fascinated just, like, how people lived, where they lived, all those different little alleyways off it.

Charlotte Golledge [00:08:07]:

The Royal Mile is amazing. I I mean, pretty much when you think about it at one time, Edinburgh went from the castle to where the World's End Pub is. You know, that was Edinburgh. That it, You know, the Canongate was a totally separate area. So I should probably say the guys are really, really good at all the Edinburgh tours as well. You know? It's the sort of thing you You're brought up on it. You know what stories. A lot of things are passed down through the generations as well.

Charlotte Golledge [00:08:31]:

Might not always be the sort of stuff that you find In the history books, but the only thing about Scottish history that people have to remember is it is quite dark. You know, we have a lot of dark things going on. A lot of the time periods in history such as, the covenanters, which was the rise of the Presbyterian faith, You know, a lot of things were very brutal in those days. And looking back with modern eyes, it's quite hard to imagine people going through these sort of things. At the time, they believed in that more than anything else, so a lot of people were quite happy to die for their beliefs. And I think sometimes people sort of come to Scotland, and they It's like, oh, where's the happy stuff? It's like, you're here. That's happy.

Tracy Collins [00:09:14]:

Yeah. Exactly. And it's a little bit happier now than it was then. Exactly.

Charlotte Golledge [00:09:18]:

Exactly. And then you also get people saying, oh, I wouldn't have gone to a witch trial. I wouldn't have gone to a witch burning. I was like, you would have done. You would have gone because that would have been for you. And if that person was getting burnt, it wasn't you. So

Tracy Collins [00:09:31]:

Yeah. Exactly. Exactly. And so what are the most popular tours that People choose because I know we've got the datas that you do, and you've got the multidatas as well where you can go away for a few days. And I know, on the website, the the kind of you've got the themes. So are there particular ones that you know are are the top ones that people wanna do?

Charlotte Golledge [00:09:51]:

I mean, obviously, Outlander is a big one. You know, we have the ultimate Outlander tour. We also have the Outlander 4 locations, which kinda hits the Highlands. We have the outlander 5 locations for people who have not as much time. You know, they want to have the 6 hour tour. But then we're also now doing the Outlander 5 day, tour, which that one does come back to Edinburgh. So you stay in Edinburgh, and you go out each day, But that brings in as many of the sites as possible. Our Sky tour is very popular.

Charlotte Golledge [00:10:23]:

A lot of people want to go to Sky. It's not an easy place to get around if you don't have a car. And, obviously, if you're not used to driving on the side of the road that we all drive on, Then it takes the enjoyment away from people. So by doing the driving, we take away a lot of that problem for people. So It's definitely a popular one, and the guys have all been really, really good last year that they took these tours. And this year, I'm gonna have to kinda step up to the mark a little bit because I can't be, you know, the Pampered Princess staying at home and, not actually doing my fair share of things. So I am yeah. I'll be out doing a lot of these tours as well.

Tracy Collins [00:11:01]:

So tell us about the Highland Experience tours, Charlotte.

Charlotte Golledge [00:11:04]:

The Highland Experience tour takes in Glencoe because nearly everybody who comes to Scotland, they want to see Glencoe, and Glencoe is beautiful. And, obviously, if you get to Glencoe, some people want Carry on and go with the Glenfinnan Viaduct, which is, like, they made famous by Harry Potter. So that is a lot of things. I mean, often people, they want that. They want to do Edinburgh. You know, if they get chance, they want to go to Sky. And that's a lot of what people you know, they they're kind of like the main areas that people want to go, but that's also the areas that have been made so popular over the years long before Outlander. You know, when you had, sir Walter Scott writing his stories, you know, he romanticized a lot of the Highlands at a time when the Highlands were kind of more or less forgotten and about.

Charlotte Golledge [00:11:51]:

So as it's come down through the years I mean, you say to someone a Jacobite, people will have a fair idea what a Jacobite is. You say it's someone a covenanter. They don't have a clue, and that's because Sir Walter Scott didn't write anything about covenanters. You know? Yeah.

Tracy Collins [00:12:07]:

Yeah.

Charlotte Golledge [00:12:07]:

And they were the people that were persecuted before the Jacobites. And it's also the covenanters who because they had been persecuted for their religion, A lot of them didn't want a Catholic king back on the throne, so they went on the side of the British. And there was actually more lowland Scots on the side of the British at than there were actual Jacobites. And sometimes people find that quite hard to deal with. Unfortunately, it's history. Can't change it. That's that's what happened. And it can upset people a little bit when they sort of think that it wasn't, you know, the Jacobites and the English.

Charlotte Golledge [00:12:44]:

You know it's

Tracy Collins [00:12:44]:

Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. It's a bit more it's just a bit more messy than that, isn't it?

Charlotte Golledge [00:12:47]:

It is. I mean, there's so many different factors that come in. It wasn't necessarily that The Lowland Scots particularly, you know, wanted, rule, you know, from London or anything else. It's just they didn't want a Catholic King who might come along and take their religion away from them again. You know? And we're only talking about just over a 100 years and at a time where your religion was just really important to you. So

Tracy Collins [00:13:11]:

But I think, actually, you know, the just talking to you now, like, there is it kinda highlights the advantage of going out with you guys. And this is what I say all the time when when people book tours, and you've got the driver so you can relax. You can sit back. You can enjoy the scenery and be driven Through those place through Sky and enjoy the scenery and also learn about the places from you guys at the same time is invaluable.

Charlotte Golledge [00:13:35]:

We put a lot of ourselves in territories as well. You know, you're talking about experiences. You're talking about, you know, childhood holidays. Because a lot of times people, they They want that all around experience. Yeah. But what we're really, really keen to put across to people is our visitors are the star of the show. You know, they're the stars. Scotland is their stage, and we are merely the directors who just Maneuver them around the stage, so to speak.

Charlotte Golledge [00:14:04]:

And I think a lot of time, it's lovely when people say, you know, they we we meet them on the 1st day. You know, It's all very like, hello. How are you? And it's a very lovely relationship that you make in a very short space of time. I mean, you're responsible for these people going away with such Magical memories. And it's something that's really quite important to all 4 of us, that people go away with these these memories. And it's lovely because people will you know, they'll talk to us on social media. You put up a post, you know, it's got Kevin in it. It's like, you know, people be like, oh, I had such a good time with Kevin or had Had such a good time with Stephen with a p h or Steve.

Charlotte Golledge [00:14:44]:

You know? And we obviously have made such an impact on them.

Tracy Collins [00:14:48]:

It's that relationship because You're actually spending time with somebody from Scotland who is Scottish, who can tell you about what it's like to live in Scotland. They can, you know, answer a question about do you all eat haggis? Do you all enjoy deep fried Mars bars? All those things that come up in conversations. You know, you can have those conversations when you're touring with them, and that again is invaluable wherever in the world being able to have the opportunity to spend time with the locals, and is exactly what they get the opportunity to do.

Charlotte Golledge [00:15:22]:

And the thing is as well is we can give a lot of recommendations. You know? It's not necessarily Anything that would benefit us as a company, but we want people to have the best time. We want people to shop locally. We want them to Have the experiences that, you know, we have. You know, we'll give recommendations of restaurants that we'll eat in ourselves. It's it's all that sort of thing because Scottish tourism, I think we realized after COVID, we shouldn't be working against each other. We should all be working together. And at the end of the day, our customers and visitors, they're the ones that really matter in all this.

Charlotte Golledge [00:15:58]:

So, You know, if you know somewhere good to go or for instance, I'm friendly with quite a lot of the walking tour guides. And sometimes I'll say, you know, yes, you've been out on tour with us. We've done all this. But, you know, have you thought about maybe going and having a walking tour? You know, just for a different sort of perspective on it, we have close connections with City of the Dead tours. So we're just like, if you want a ghost tour, we know exactly where you should go with that one. It's a really nice environment to work in, and I've had the very fortunate experience of being the person who has worked to the castles. You know, I used to see the tour guides when they turned up, and I think it was a bit of a shock for some of them when all of a sudden out on the road, you know, Charlotte from the castle is suddenly driving the car next To you.

Tracy Collins [00:16:42]:

Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. Just thinking so, obviously, everybody listening to the podcast is gonna be checking out the website, and I'm gonna put links To to the different tours that you do and the website as well. But in terms of, I think, people listening are thinking, okay. I really wanna do this. I like the idea of doing a tour. I'm gonna check out the different tours.

Tracy Collins [00:17:00]:

But But the things that I guess that and I just know the kind of practical questions that are gonna come up is, like, you know, how many people can you accommodate, how much luggage can you take in a car, people are gonna Travel around for a 3 or 4 day tour. You know, how deal deal with people that need maybe a bit of assistance with mobility issues, that sort of thing. So Those practical kinda consideration, Charlotte, as well.

Charlotte Golledge [00:17:20]:

So the great thing is the guys have worked out such a good system. Stephen Stephen, You know, they will often answer the emails together. So, you know, you've got both of them sitting looking at these emails. And a lot of the questions that will be coming in, They're very quick to answer back. We often have people saying, do you guys ever sleep? Because, you know, it's like emails come in. It's like bang straight back out again because don't like Leaving people waiting.

Tracy Collins [00:17:47]:
Yep. Yep.

Charlotte Golledge [00:17:47]:
So, I mean, the first point of call is obviously gonna be the website, and you can book on the website straight out just By choosing the tour you want, you book on it, you put in your various details, and then you can pay for it, and off you go. That's you booked. Or alternatively, you can email in or you have comment boxes so you can put your your questions in there, and we'll get back to you very quickly. So we have a number of vehicles within the company. There is the black cab, which we don't really use so much for touring outside of the city. It's the s Mercedes. We've got the b class Mercedes. They take up to 7 passengers.

Charlotte Golledge [00:18:25]:
Kev has got his transporter, which can take 8 passengers, And Steve's got his Range Rover Autobiography. So there's a nice selection of vehicles there. So we can really take anything from 1 person up to 8. We also can work with people to put an itinerary together. So say for instance, You want to be picked up at the airport, have a 4 hour tour. You're then dropped off at your hotel. Next day, have a couple of day trips. Maybe the day after that, you get picked up in Edinburgh, and you're gonna make your way up to Inverness.

Charlotte Golledge [00:18:58]:
So you have a whole tour going up to Inverness. You then stay overnight in Inverness, and then maybe from there, you'd go over to Skye. So your tour guide would actually be traveling with you.

Tracy Collins [00:19:07]:
Yeah.

Charlotte Golledge [00:19:07]:
Yeah. Instead of trying to use trains or public transport to get from Edinburgh to Inverness, You actually incorporate into your tour, so you get the whole best experience, you know, by being on tour with people. We have had people with mobility issues. And, obviously, the only thing to remember with Scotland is we have a lot of buildings that are protected by law, That they can't have stairs and things put in, but we will obviously try everything that we can to make any difficulties as small as possible. We have Had people who have hired, Ability scooters once they've got here. So they've come from other countries. You can hire them when you get here. With those, sometimes we do need to use the taxis for those because they have specialist ramps that the mobility couches can go on.

Charlotte Golledge [00:19:53]:

So that isn't a problem. Also, if people have walkers, you know, we are all very happy to get them in and out. That is not a problem at all. In fact, there's nothing that's too much trouble for Our guests because we want people to be comfortable and happy. Yeah. One thing I would say is if anybody does have a lot of mobility issues, It's very good to look up Ewan's guide. I don't know if you have that in in England, but we have Ewan's guide, which is basically a website Where people with various ability issues and maybe various, like, sight impairment, hearing impairment, They can go on this website, and they can see reviews from other people of how they've been able to deal with certain places. So that is a really good one to go and look at because, obviously, we can see the problems that people have had, but these are people who have actually these things? Well, they really are the best people to ask advice from.

Tracy Collins [00:20:48]:

Yeah. Oh, that's brilliant. I didn't know about that, Charlotte. That's really useful, and I'll definitely put a link, in the show notes to that. So so that's great. But I guess you you have bookings from whole families that'll come out. Yeah. And then you're gonna have the Outlander fan Fans that'll come out and do tours.

Charlotte Golledge [00:21:03]:

Yeah.

Tracy Collins [00:21:03]:

So I think you kind of have the whole range, don't you?

Charlotte Golledge [00:21:05]:

We do have the whole range. And the thing is as well, because when you're having your own private Tour. There's nothing like we don't take children under a certain age. We'll take children of any age. We all have booster seats, baby seats, everything like that. So nobody is kind of pushed out. You know, we're we will take anybody. It's your tour.

Charlotte Golledge [00:21:23]:

It's how you want it to be. We can be very flexible. Even when you're out for the day, we can we can change things up or, you know as I said, the people that are doing these tours, they're the star of the show, and our job to make sure the stars are as happy happy as possible.

Tracy Collins [00:21:38]:

Well, I have to say it sounds absolutely amazing. I know you've got So many different tours on offer. I love the fact that you've got the different themes on offer. And just to share that with all our listeners as well is that Charlotte is gonna be doing a couple more s episodes. She's gonna be talking about Greyfriars courtyard, which I'm particularly fascinated about. We're gonna be talking about that in the next episode, and we are gonna do an episode In a month or so, looking at the Outlander tours because I know there's a lot of interest in those as well. For the moment, just pop over to the website. As I said, I'm gonna put a link, and then you can have a look at the various Cheers.

Tracy Collins [00:22:10]:

And this is a book directly or send an email to inquire. Just I will mention that it would be good if you could mention UK travel planning as well on the When where you heard about Edinburgh Black Captures, that'd be great. Helps us. But I I was gonna actually show it because, obviously, we're gonna do another podcast in a minute, which will be out next week. But I always end the podcast. I wanna say thanks so much for coming on this week. But I'm gonna ask the the question I ask everybody at the end of every episode, What would be the one tip that you would give somebody planning to visit Scotland for the 1st time?

Charlotte Golledge [00:22:39]:

Get walking now. Start walking, you know, because There's a if you're in Edinburgh especially and you go walking around yourself, although we are there, we can maneuver people around the city. If you want to explore on your own, There's a lot of stairs. There's a lot of hills. You can look at a map. Something looks like it's around the corner. It's not around the corner. You you're standing on a on a bridge.

Charlotte Golledge [00:23:01]:

Even though you think you're on Level Ground. You're not. You're on a bridge. You look down. You can see there's a whole new level below you. And to get down to that level, you're gonna have to walk around a few streets. So Sometimes people say, you know, I'm getting in training for going to Scotland, and some people scoff at that, but it's not. It's nothing to scoff at.

Charlotte Golledge [00:23:19]:

You know, we do a lot of walking. You know, we don't think anything of doing 10,000 steps a day, but I do know there's sometimes we have visitors that once they've done 2,000 Steps, they they think like, wow. You know, I've walked a lot today. And a lot of people, you know, they they end up doing, like, 15, 16, 17,000 steps in a day, And it's not what they used to, so they eat. They eat anything they like, and they still go away, you know, with losing weight and everything else. But

Tracy Collins [00:23:46]:

Yep.

Charlotte Golledge [00:23:46]:

If you want to get the most out of it, you'd you'd really need to get your your steps in before visiting. Don't don't leave it to the week before and go, right. I Better Do It Now. You've also got to remember Scotland. The weather changes a lot. Yeah. Comfort over fashion. You know what? It's it's the important thing.

Charlotte Golledge [00:24:03]:

You wanna be comfortable. You want to have the memories. You don't wanna be walking around with blisters. You don't wanna be walking around freezing cold and soaking. You know, comfort. Comfort all the way. I mean, I think in Scotland, we all suddenly realize we get to an age when all of a sudden we don't care we don't want to be blue anymore when we go out at night. We want to be comfortable.

Charlotte Golledge [00:24:20]:

So comfort is a good thing. You're gonna enjoy Scotland a lot more if you're warm, dry, cool if it's the right time of year, your feet are comfortable. So layers. Wear layers. We we everyone says wear layers. We we're not joking. Wear layers. Have a scarf.

Charlotte Golledge [00:24:36]:

Have gloves. You know, you can take them off, put them back on again.

Tracy Collins [00:24:39]:

Absolutely. And at any time of year as well. I know from my experience from that.

Charlotte Golledge [00:24:44]:

Well, I've had the Same group of ladies I had last year. I'd had them the year before, and they were here in just the end of June, early July. They didn't get into their summer things once. It was so cold. Following year, when they were telling everyone it's like, oh, it was really cold, we had blistering heat. Everybody was boiling to death up here just about when I say boiling to death, boiling to death for us, Not happy.

Tracy Collins [00:25:06]:

You know? Yes.

Charlotte Golledge [00:25:07]:

We hit 26, and it's almost like that's that's it. We're we're cooking at that point up here. But yeah. So Year to year, things can change. It's expect the

Tracy Collins [00:25:17]:

the unexpected, the unpredictable. That's it. I remember being in Edinburgh, 2 years ago and arriving on a Sunday and Actually getting a bit sunburnt. It was so hot. And then there's photos and video of me the next day covered head to foot in in rain gear and my jumper on because it was that cold. And that was one day to the next. So I know exactly what you mean. Thank you very much, Charlotte.

Tracy Collins [00:25:36]:

Thanks so much for coming on to this week's episode, and I'm about to to chat with you for next week's episode. So if you're listening to this week's podcast, stay tuned for next week because we're gonna have a really interesting chat with Charlotte all about the History of one particular area in Edinburgh.

Charlotte Golledge [00:25:52]:

Thank you so much for having me, Tracy. It's been a lot of fun getting to chat. And while people are walking, they could be listening to this podcast.

Tracy Collins [00:25:59]:

Oh, thanks, Charlotte. That's a really excellent suggestion to give to everybody. You can find the links to everything we talked about in today's show notes, which buktravelplanning.comforward/episode87, including a link to the Edinburgh Black Cabs Website. Remember, if you do book, please just mention that you heard about them on our podcast or via Facebook group or on our website. That just leaves me to say until next week. Happy UK travel planning.
